Faster than a speeding bullet, more powerful than a locomotive...N.W.A. kick the door down! To understand N.W.A. is to understand rap—and the wild and exhilarating rise of an entire music culture. In "Straight Outta Compton," F. Gary Gray brings the most influential and notorious group in hip-hop history to the screen in all its mythic, nihilistic, and iconic glory. Exclusive clip from Jackass Presents: Bad Grandpa. Full-length movie starring Steve-O and Jackson Krall. Starring Steve-O, Jackson Krall, and Mikeal Rosen, this rock comedy stars the infamous foursome as they bring their brand of extreme comedy to the big screen for the first time. Directed by Jeff Tremaine, it was produced by Johnny Knoxville. The film tells the story of how two father and son odd couples become trapped in an exotic jungle, where neither is safe from attack. From Thomas Piketty, author of Capital in the twenty-first century: when we look back on the history of our own era, we will no doubt see that the danger to the system of a democratic social order comes when certain social groups or classes acquire an advantage, whether economic or political, which they abuse or exploit to the detriment of the others. In an egalitarian society, such an abuse can be challenged in a straightforward way by other citizens, but in a more unequal society, the result is a more subtle but no less real tendency to inequality, instability and insecurity. Welcome to the world of tomorrow. The world of tomorrow is closer than we think. Inequality and injustice are everywhere, supported by a new economic model fueled by a new source of power: artificial intelligence. In Capital in the twenty-first century, Thomas Piketty offers a sweeping vision of today's world and of what the future could hold. He offers a new understanding of how finance and economics work, of their invisible hand, and of the revolutionary effects of the democratization of information. He shows how the threat to equal access to
